To Whom it May Concern:

This letter is intended as a reference for Jason Shurtz based on my personal experiences with him as a coworker. We worked together for a few years at [REDACTED] restaurant in Cardiff by the Sea, where I bartend and waitress. [REDACTED] is a very fast paced restaurant, especially during the summer and race track season, which is constantly filled with all sorts of customers.

From the point of view of a bartender, it was a pleasure to be scheduled with Jason. His welcoming personality drew people to the bar and allowed each customer to feel as if he gave them personalized service. He was also amazing at multi-tasking; he could listen to our regulars' stories about the huge waves they caught that day, while recommending a margarita to a first time customer, and blending up a pina colada all at the same time. It was also great to be behind the bar with Jason because he is so versatile and easy going. He would be manning the front well and jump to the service well when needed very quickly and efficiently. When it came time to close up the bar, he went above and beyond with his side work and cleaning, leaving the bar spotless every night. Jason is a very helpful person and would always pick up or switch shifts with me when I was in a bind.

From the point of view of a server, it was awesome to be working when Jason was bartending. He made the drinks so quickly that I would never have to wait to bring them to my tables. Additionally, I would constantly get compliments from my customers about how delicious their drinks were. So not only is Jason time efficient, he pours a great drink!

Overall, I truly believe that Jason is an outstanding employee, coworker, and person overall. Because of his warm demeanor, efficient communication skills, and prior experience in the service industry, I think Jason is an exceptional addition to your company.

Sincerely,
